The Main Calendar (this page) applies to most UTS students. However, if you are part of the Graduate School of Health or Teacher Education you might need to be using Calendar B (see the reverse side of this wall planner) to meet specific accreditation and practicum needs. Please check footnote 10 (below) if you are unsure whether your course uses the Main Calendar or Calendar B.

Week 1

Activities are mandatory from week 1 of each session. Week 1 can include on- or off-campus activities, including readings, quizzes, podcasts, videos, diagnostic testing and general or lab inductions. Details of your week 1 activities are on your subject outlines which you can find on UTSOnline.

learning.futures

UTS inspires graduate success by engaging students in creative learning that enables them to build strong professional identities, future-focussed graduate capabilities and global citizenship.

learning.futures puts students at the centre of the learning experience and promotes innovation in learning by integrating the best of online and faceto-face experiences.

The learning.futures approach includes:

- > implementing evidence-based good practice in teaching and learning that promotes interactive, engaging, personal learning experiences and authentic assessment
- > curriculum that integrates creativity, innovation and technologies to create inspiring learning experiences for students
- > enabling students to engage with new ideas before they come to class and so they may participate in active and collaborative experiences in innovative learning spaces while
- > promoting graduate workplace success through increased opportunities for work-integrated learning, internships and transdisciplinary learning outcomes.

UTS inspires graduate success by engaging students in creative learning that enables them to build strong professional identities, future-focussed graduate capabilities and global citizenship.

learning.futures puts students at the centre of the learning experience and promotes innovation in learning by integrating the best of online and faceto-face experiences.

The learning.futures approach includes:

- > implementing evidence-based good practice in teaching and learning that promotes interactive, engaging, personal learning experiences and authentic assessment
- > curriculum that integrates creativity, innovation and technologies to create inspiring learning experiences for students
- > enabling students to engage with new ideas before they come to class and so they may participate in active and collaborative experiences in innovative learning spaces while on campus
- > promoting graduate workplace success through increased opportunities for work-integrated learning, internships and transdisciplinary learning outcomes.
